Here we describe the potential of natural phytochemicals as an alternative method for addressing mycotoxin contamination that uses Ocimum gratissimum essential as a natural inhibitor of soil-borne Aspergillus species. Fundamentally, the disclosure of the invention describes the greatest growth inhibition and obstruction of morphogenesis of sixteen species of Aspergillus isolated from mycotoxin-prone soils of Machakos, Kitui, and Makueni counties in Eastern Kenya. The components of O.gratissimum oil may have an inhibitory or lethal impact at 1×10^{-2} ul/ml on the Aspergillus family, which can be used in the production of organic soil-applied antimycotoxin products or as models for novel, safer, and more potent antiaflatoxin chemicals impacting positively on food safety, health and agricultural economics.

BOX 210-40601 BONDO , Kenya and P.O. BOX 210-40601 BONDO , Kenya (74) Agent: (57) In this work, the process of generating unique codes for products is demonstrated. The process involves: writing down the alphabets; followed by identifying the vowels(a.e.i.o,u) and labelling them as 1,2,3,4,5. Then the remaining alphabets are numbered sequentially, and codes generated from a combination of the numbered alphabets. For instance, a PEN can have a unique code of 175-ACU. Firstly, we use the letters in the labelled alphabet to get 35 (P = 17, E = 2, and N = 16) then 35 is multiplied by 5 (the last number in the addition) to get 175. Then the letters are referred to the labelled alphabet to get ACU (1 = A, 7 = , C and 5 = U). As a result, a PEN shall have unique code of 175-ACU. This code can be used as a secret code on products to indicate authenticity.

O. BOX 405-60202 NKUBU, Kenya (74) Agent: , (57) This invention introduces an integrated system for monitoring and predicting temperature distributions within cold storage facilities. It combines thermochromic surface sensing, color-based imaging, and machine learning to offer a robust and scalable solution. The system features real-time data storage and an intuitive graphical user interface (GUI), allowing for accurate monitoring of thousands of packaged food items, ultimately enhancing cold storage efficiency and ensuring food safety. At its core, the system employs a computer-implemented method for monitoring the center temperature distribution of packaged, palletized, and stacked food products. This method works by measuring the surface temperature of products using thermochromic materials strategically placed on product surfaces and at various locations within the cold room. A camera connected to a data logger periodically records snapshots of these thermochromic materials. The captured images are then transmitted to an online GUI, where the snapshots of the thermochromic materials are converted into temperature values. Users can then select a region of interest from the measured surface temperature data. This information serves as input for a physics-based machine learning model that relates the surface temperature measurements of stacked products to the center temperature of inner products. This enables real-time monitoring of the overall temperature distribution of stacked products.

It integrates thermal imaging, and machine learning to provide a robust solution. The system includes real-time data storage and a graphical user interface (GUI), allowing for accurate and scalable monitoring of thousands of food items. This ultimately optimizes cold storage efficiency and enhances food safety. The core of this system is a computer-implemented method for monitoring the center temperature distribution of packaged and stacked food products. This method utilizes non-invasive infrared thermography to measure the surface temperature of the products. This data is then transmitted to a developed online GUI. Users can select a region of interest from the measured surface temperature, which serves as input for a machine learning model. This model then correlates the surface temperature measurements of stacked products to the center temperature of inner products, enabling the comprehensive monitoring of the overall temperature distribution within stacked, packaged food items.

Fish are housed at the base, livestock in the middle, plants at the top and solar panels. Livestock droppings feed the fish; Fish water is re-circulated through a waste water treatment unit where the waste water is converted into nutrients which feed the vegetables (on water/aquaponics) and algae.

The algae are fed to the fish. Algae and chicken waste serve as supplemental, high-protein feed, reducing dependency on commercial feed. Vegetable waste is fed to the livestock/ poultry. The system is powered by solar energy, allowing off-grid operation and efficient resource use. The design reduces water consumption through recirculation and requires minimal space. The upper tier is mobile to facilitate harvesting.

(72) Inventor(s) (74) Agent/Address for service: ROLAND INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY CONSULTANTS, 3 Maritz Street, Windhoek, P. O. Box 91198, Windhoek, Namibia (54) Title: FREQUENCY HOPPING (51) Int.Cl.: H 04B 1/713, H 04B 1/7143, H 04K 1/00 (57) Abstract: A frequency hopping method and associated apparatus and system using the frequency hopping method are described. The frequency hopping method includes obtaining a key value based on or including a current time value obtained from a current time value source. The key value is used to determine a hop frequency value by querying a data structure stored on a storage medium for a value associated with the key value. The data structure includes a plurality of values, each of which having been generated from a truly random process such that there is no mathematical relationship between the values. A carrier frequency of a transceiver module is set to the hop frequency value for transmitting and receiving radio signals using the carrier frequency.

9.7 REMOVAL

Section 23 of the Trade Marks Act provides that registration of a trade mark in Kenya shall expire after a period of ten (10) years. The Act also provides that the proprietor of a registered trade mark may make an application for renewal of the trade mark upon completion of the prescribed Form TM 10 and payment of the prescribed renewal fee.

Rule 65 of the Trade Mark Rules provides that where no application for renewal of a registered trade mark is received upon expiry of the ten year period, the Registrar of Trade Marks shall notify the proprietor of this fact. Where no application for renewal of the registered trade mark is received within a period of sixty (60) days from the date of the notice for renewal by the Registrar, rule 67 of the Trade Mark Rules requires the Registrar of Trade Marks to publish this fact.

In accordance with the above provisions, the Registrar of Trade Marks hereby notifies the public that the proprietors of the trade marks indicated below were duly notified and that they did not file applications for renewal of their respective trade marks.

In accordance with the provisions of rules 67 and 68 of the Trade Mark Rules, the public is hereby notified as follows:

Where the proprietor of a registered trade mark makes an application for renewal of a mark that has been published herein and pays the renewal fee together with the additional prescribed late renewal fee within thirty (30) days from the date of this publication, the trade mark shall be renewed and shall not be removed from the Register of Trade Marks;

Where no application for renewal of a trade mark published herein is received within thirty (30) days from the date of this publication, the trade mark shall be forthwith removed from the Register of Trade Marks; and

Once the trade mark is removed from the Register of Trade Marks, the proprietor may thereafter make an application for renewal of the mark upon payment of the prescribed renewal fee together with the additional prescribed restoration fee. The trade mark shall then be restored to the Register of Trade Marks upon the Registrar of Trade Marks being satisfied that it is just to do so and upon imposing such conditions as the Registrar may deem fit.
