Launch of the Patent Online Filing System

The Institute is pleased to announce a significant milestone in our commitment to enhancing service delivery and embracing digital transformation. This is in line with the Government's digitalization of public services aimed at improving efficiency, accessibility and inclusivity as spelt out under the Bottom-Up Economic Transformation Agenda (BETA)'s 5th core pillar, the Digital Superhighway and Creative Economy.

We have officially launched our new Online Filing System, a secure and user-friendly platform designed to streamline the application process for industrial property (IP) rights.

With this new system, clients can now file and make payments for the following National Applications entirely online, from anywhere and at any time: -

- i. Patents
- ii. Industrial Designs; and
- iii. Utility Models

The e-Filing System is expected to bring benefits including 24/7 convenience whereby clients can file their applications outside of the traditional office working hours, ensure faster processing and enhance cost-effectiveness thereby saving on traveling, printing, and physical document handling costs.

The e-filing portal is live and accessible via the KIPI website under e-services menu at (<https://patentonline.kipi.go.ke/efiling/>). Additional information on how to use the e-filing system is available on the Institute's website www.kipi.go.ke.

All clients are encouraged to use this platform. For any assistance, contact us on Tel: 0702002020 and 0736002020 or email ict@kipi.go.ke.

(51) C 04B 35/48(2006.01)// (C 04B 35:48) (57) The silica sand from coastal beaches has been of low economic value for a very long time. The continued demand of macadamia in Kenya has increased the generation of their nut wastes to the environment leading to their disposal problems. This has resulted to serious environmental pollution.

Therefore, coming up with a greener and cost effective way to handle the wastes is necessary. This is achieved by the use of the silica extracted from the silica sand and macadamia nut biochar in the synthesis of silicon nitride bio ceramics for application in vast fields. The extracted silica and the biochar were mixed in stoichiometric ratios (2 biochar: 1 silica), NH₄OH (50 % v/v) solution added and the mixture heated for 24 hours. The Si₃N₄ bioceramic material was 22.2 % and 63.0 % for silicon and nitrogen respectively (EDX analysis).

The preparation involves culturing specific micro-organisms, incorporating them into a matrix of amorphous clay which has been activated with calcium and alkali hydroxides and drying the mixture to create a stable, free-flowing carrier. This dried blend is subsequently integrated with finely ground hydraulic cement. Upon application and subsequent exposure to moisture, the embedded micro-organisms activate to induce the continuous deposition of mineral and cementitious materials. This process enables the autonomous repair of micro-cracks and voids over the structure's service life, enhancing structural integrity, reducing maintenance costs, and preventing moisture ingress. The formulation further controls free lime and alkali content to ensure long-term substrate compatibility.

The composition exhibits significant antibacterial and antifungal properties, utilizing plant extracts traditionally employed for the management of ringworm and various skin conditions. The surfactant framework of the cleanser comprises ungerol, industrial salt, and CDC, and is further enhanced with SLES, liquid paraffin, a preservative, and a pearlescent concentrate to ensure optimal cleaning power, texture, and aesthetic appeal. A pH-stabilizing agent is incorporated to maintain a skin-neutral balance. The manufacturing process involves a specific sequence starting with the formation of a homogenous dough from ungerol and salt, followed by neutralization with sodium hydroxide to reach a pH of approximately 7. The process concludes with the infusion of plant-derived drug extracts, resulting in a stable, standardized hygiene solution that bridges traditional botanical knowledge with industrial chemical engineering

Transaction evidence data is received and transformed into a structured canonical event data object comprising normalized data fields including a transaction identifier, timestamp, source identifier, destination identifier, and transaction value. A verification module applies stored verification rules to the canonical event data object to generate intermediate verification results, from which a confidence score indicative of validity of the transaction event is computed. A sanitized event data object is generated by applying privacy-preserving transformations including tokenization and masking to the canonical event data object. A verification result derived from the confidence score is transmitted to an external system within a predefined time threshold. The invention provides improved reliability, reduced processing latency, and controlled exposure of sensitive data in transaction verification systems.
